

Handwritten cursive letters 'j' and 'i' on a four-line grid. Below them, the word 'jeź' is written in cursive, with the 'j' and 'i' from the previous row serving as the first two letters.

A row of 12 cursive 'j' characters on a four-line grid for tracing practice.

A row of 12 cursive 'j' characters on a four-line grid for tracing practice. The first four are solid, and the remaining eight are dashed.

A row of 12 cursive 'i' characters on a four-line grid for tracing practice.

A row of 12 cursive 'i' characters on a four-line grid for tracing practice. The first four are solid, and the remaining eight are dashed.

A row of 12 cursive 'j' and 'i' pairs on a four-line grid for tracing practice. The first four are solid, and the remaining eight are dashed.

A row of 12 cursive 'j' and 'i' pairs on a four-line grid for tracing practice. The first four are solid, and the remaining eight are dashed.